MONUMENT GROUPS.

Mr. Gibson Expresses the Opinion that None of the Designs Should Be Used.

"What have you to say about the report of the committee of experts on the designs submitted for the groups to finish the soldiers' monument?" was asked Mr. Louis H. Gibson.

"I like the report better than I do the groups. It would be presumptions on my part to question the decision of artists like Mr. St. Gaudens, Mr. French and Mr. Atwood, but if one reads the report carefully it is to be noticed that while they make the award of prize they do not recommend that any of the designs submitted be executed. This places the board of commissioners in an embarrassing position. They are altogether in a different situation from what they were at the time they had made other awards for other designs submitted for the monument itself and the different parts of the work. There was no question but what the design of the monument itself was the best submitted, and there was no question but what it was well worthy of being carried out. This was true also of the competition which decided that Mr. Brewster should model the crowning figure. The situation was the same in the astragal competition. There was no question but what several designs submitted were good, and there was no question but what they should be executed. This left the monument commissioners in a very agreeable position. They did not hazard anything in making an award, but in view of the circumstances, we do not recommend that the work be awarded to either of the competitors without further consideration."

"Bearing in mind the fact that we have a monument in our city which promises to be the most successful monument of its kind in the world, and that it remains for these groups to make or destroy everything that has gone before it is plain to see that the situation is embarrassing. The experts say further: 'To observe the harmony of the monument both groups should be executed by the same hand.' At the same time they say that the design of the crowning figure is the best submitted, and that the design of the group 'War' to one artist and for the group 'Peace' to another. No one who sees the groups will question but what they have done right in the decision they have made, yet that does not relieve the commission. The commissioners are not artists nor have they at any time exercised their judgment as artists. Because of this, the monument has thus far been successful. They are capable business men, and as such have sought expert advice. It would be better to let the monument rest for ten years without the finishing groups, rather than to run any risk of spoiling everything that has gone before. As long as there is any question as to whether the designs or any of them should be adopted, the fact that there is a question should settle the whole matter. If there is any doubt in the minds of the commissioners as to whether one or any of these designs should be selected, that doubt should be settled by the fact that the monument should be selected, and that a new competition or other means of securing the proper results be devised. The experts were uncertain, the commissioners are uncertain, and this doubt should decide the fate of this competition. This doubt should be decided by the designs which have been submitted."

The monument commissioners met yesterday and transacted merely routine business. The contract for grading Circle Park was let to Hanway & Teneyck at $300.

Hetherington & Berner were directed to paint the iron-work at the top of the monument. The business pertaining to the report of the experts on the War and Peace groups was deferred until the next meeting, Friday, Nov. 4. This day is selected because of election day occurring so near the regular date of the commission's meeting was not able to attend the meeting.

MRS. HARRISON'S FUNERAL

She Will Be Laid to Rest in Crown Hill Cemetery Friday Morning.

Services at the First Presbyterian—Burial Plot Selected—Schedule of the Train—The Pall-Bearers.

THE FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

Everything Will Be Conducted in the Simplest Manner—The Train Schedule.

Early yesterday morning Rev. M. L. Haines, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, received a telegram from Mr. Halford stating that the funeral party would arrive here Thursday, but a short time later another telegram informed him that the funeral party would leave Washington Thursday morning, after a short funeral service at the White House, on a special train, and would arrive in this city at 9:30 Friday morning.

Arrangements for the special train which will bear Mrs. Harrison's remains from Washington to Indianapolis have been completed by Vice-president Frank Thompson, of the Pennsylvania railroad. Accommodations will be provided for the President and family and a few personal friends, including the Vice-president, members of the Cabinet and their families. At 11:30 A. M. Thursday the train will leave Washington, reaching Baltimore at 12:30 P. M., Harrisburg at 2:35, Altoona at 7 o'clock, Pittsburgh at 10:20, Eastern time; Columbus, B. & O., and Indianapolis at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning. The return will be made as soon as convenient after the funeral services on Friday evening, and the mourners are expected to be in Washington again by 6:10 P. M. on Saturday. An engine combination baggage and drawing-room car, a ding car, three sleepers, the President's private car and an observation car, containing the remains, will comprise the train.

A telegram was received by Mr. R. S. McKee, last night, verifying the statement as to the time of the departure from Washington and the arrival in this city, with the additional statement that the President would stop for an hour or so at Mr. McKee's residence on his return to the train.

The remains will be taken at once to the First Presbyterian Church, where the simple service will be held, conducted by the pastor. After this, the cortege will proceed at once to Crown Hill cemetery.

Mr. Chapin G. Foster, at the request of Rev. Haines, will appropriately decorate the church. Capt. John Cleland, of the President's regiment, the Seventeenth Indiana, has asked for seats for sixty members of the regiment. Seats will be reserved for the funeral party from Washington.

Rev. Haines says that according to request the simplest burial services will be performed.

Secretary Halford, in a telegram received last evening by R. S. McKee, says: "The President desires the services of the church to be simple. 'Lead, kindly light' and 'One Sweetly Solenn Thought' are desired to be sung."

The pall-bearers who will officiate at Indianapolis have been selected. They are Dr. H. R. Allen, John B. Elam, Hugh Hanna, E. R. Martindale, Gen. Lew Wallace of Crawfordsville, Hon. W. C. Niblack of Vincennes, John R. Elder and Theodore P. Haughey. All the members of the President's family, with the exception of his three grandchildren, will accompany the remains of Mrs. Harrison to Indianapolis. This, of course, includes Dr. Scott, the venerable father of the deceased. It was at first feared that his advanced age would prevent his making the trip, but when the matter was referred to him he announced emphatically that he proposed to go and would not listen to a proposition to the contrary. Mr. J. R. McKee, the President's son-in-law, has canceled an important business engagement in Boston to-morrow and will also accompany the President, as will also the members of the Cabinet and probably the ladies of their families. It is also likely that Vice-president Morton and family, Chief-justice Fuller and a few others will be especially invited to accompany the party.

THE LOT SELECTED.

Mr. R. S. McKee Notified by Telegram of the Decision of the President.

The selection of a suitable resting-place for the remains in Crown Hill has been left to R. S. McKee, who received a telegram from Secretary Halford yesterday asking him to give the matter his attention. In the morning Mr. McKee, accompanied by Miss Nannie Newcomer and Mrs. Benjamin Walcott, daughters of Mrs. F. S. Newcomer, and cousins of the President, Mrs. R. S. McKee, Mr. C. C. Foster and E. L. McKee, went to Crown Hill. The party was shown through the beautiful grounds by Superintendent Chislett. Several of the most desirable lots were seen and recommended to the President by wire last night, and Mr. McKee received the following telegram:

RECOLLECTIONS OF MRS. HARRISON.

Mrs. John B. Elam and Mrs. John M. Butler Speak of Her in Highest Terms.

Mrs. John B. Elam visited Washington at the last holiday season, and for a week was the guest of Mrs. Harrison at the White House, being there on New Year's day. Mrs. Elam said: "Mrs. Harrison was not well at the time of my visit, and when New Year's day came she had been ill for three days, but insisted on getting up and dressing just in time for the reception, and received for an hour and a half, resting at intervals for a brief period. She was always anxious for guests to have an enjoyable visit, and did everything in her power for me. She once told me that the only real recreation she could get was to go to her studio and paint. Though she had not painted for some time she looked forward to resting spells which she might take some time. She enjoyed her life at the White House, and liked to have her Indianapolis friends there. She frequently mentioned friends whom she would like and intended to have come at some time. Mrs. Harrison went through all the receptions that winter until February, I think, but she did not go out of the house while I was there. She was occupied with letters and answers, making out lists for entertainments, and one whole day she devoted to signing the certificates of the daughters of the Revolution. She showed me her collection of souvenirs of her California trip, which was one of the happiest events of her life. Mrs. Harrison was particularly kind to newspaper people. When New Year's day came, and the reports wished to see the house and her dress, she gave them all possible information. She was fond of her friends and pleased to entertain them."

Mrs. Harrison was a member of the board of managers of the Orphan Asylum for about thirty years, and one with her this long service was Mrs. Frederick Bagge. Mrs. Bagge has the kindest recollection of Mrs. Harrison's ever-faithful and conscientious labors for the good of the home and the young.

linga, Mrs. Bagge said: "Mrs. Harrison was a worker wherever she was placed. When Mr. Harrison was Senator and he and Mrs. Harrison spent their winters in Washington she would return home in early summer, and as the first board meeting was held in New York, she had been away, having pleasure in Washington. I will work now while you are gone, and she would, all summer long. Mrs. Harrison was a trusted advisor, and her opinions seemed well matured before being offered. She was always at board meeting when in the city. At one time she was secretary for a short time. One thing I always greatly admired in Mrs. Harrison was her intense Americanism. She never sent to Europe for anything, even her inaugural dress was made and made in the United States. Whatever was made in America was good enough for her. Mrs. E. G. Cornelius, while at Chautauque lake, last summer, met an English lady who knew Mrs. Harrison when she was Carrie Scott, of Oxford. The English lady said she remembered her well, and one incident so impressed itself upon her that she never forgot it. It was at the time of graduation. All the members of the class, which was large, proposed to wear white, except one girl, whose mother had made many sacrifices in order that her daughter might be educated, and at this last sacrifice which would have to be made for the dress the daughter would not listen. The daughter went to the president, Dr. Scott, and told him she would not appear at the public exercises, and why. Dr. Scott told his daughter, and she secretly called the class together, and settled that all the class would wear white. The whole matter was so delicately decided that the young girl never knew and she, with her calico dress, was like all the others."

Mrs. John M. Butler was a neighbor and friend of Mrs. Harrison's, and exchanged calls and courtesies. In speaking of Mrs. Harrison's characteristics, Mrs. Butler noted an intelligent house-maid of Mrs. Harrison's, who had come to live with her upon the removal of the President's family to Washington. She said that Mrs. Harrison was uniformly kind to her servants, and during the long time she lived with her she had never seen her out of humor for an instant.

Telegram of Sympathy.

Yesterday afternoon the board of trustees of the Indianapolis Orphan's Home, of which Mrs. Harrison was a member, held a special meeting at the home of Mrs. Adeline Bradshaw, No. 26 East Vermont street, to take action upon the death of their friend and co-worker. The following telegram was sent to the President:

We deeply mourn with you over the sorrow that has befallen you, and extend to yourself and family the tender and heartfelt sympathy of the ladies of the orphan's board, of which Mrs. Harrison was so long an honored and beloved member.

IT SPEAKS FOR ITSELF.

A Soldier's Response to the Circular Sent Out by the Cleveland Tariff-Reform League.

Mr. B. M. Hutchins, a veteran soldier residing at Columbus, Ind., received a copy of the circular sent broadcast by the so-called National Veteran Tariff-reform League. Mr. Hutchins declines to act with the Democracy, as will be seen by the appended letter:

Mr. Thomas F. Reed, Secretary National Veteran Tariff-reform League, No. 94, Fifth avenue, New York.

Sir—I am in receipt of your circular letter or appeal to old veterans to support tariff reform and Cleveland and Stevenson. I will observe my usual custom to answer your prompt, but am frank to admit that I am somewhat at a loss to know just what I ought to say in answering the very remarkable communication. At first I was inclined to get angry and report you to Mr. Wamaker for violation of the postal law, but on reflection I decided, after re-reading it very carefully, I came to the conclusion that it was gotten up by some of the "pale-faced, paper-cut" fellows of New York, as we used to call them, thinking to entrap some of the old veterans who were in the line of the rebellion, but, indeed, a very small part of the number ever at the front.

can say to you, truthfully, that the great mass of ex-Union soldiers living in Indiana will cast their votes on the 8th November next, for their gallant comrade, Benjamin Harrison.

No gentlemen, I cannot vote for Cleveland and Stevenson. I served three years in the Sixth Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and I know something of what it cost to maintain this government, and I am not ready to turn it over into the hands of the men who, when their country was in peril and needed their support, not only failed to respond to the call, but one of them hired a substitute and the other allied himself with the Knights of the Golden Circle, a most damnable organization, whose only object was to assist the rebels in destroying the best government the sun ever shone upon.

In my opinion I can say nothing about Mr. Cleveland's vetoing of pension bills. It is enough to merely call attention to the fact that when his country most needed his services he was found wanting, and I cannot, for my life, see where any ex-Union soldier of this government is under any obligation to either Mr. Cleveland or Mr. Stevenson.

I see you mention tariff reform. I will not take time to discuss that point for I believe as I think it would be a waste of time, for I am sure you will not be able to deceive any of the old soldiers who have fought for you in this direction, for I know, and I think every well-informed soldier in Indiana knows, that you, in common with the balance of the Democratic party, know but very little about tariff reform, or any other reform that would benefit, in any way, the great mass of the people.

prosperous country—prosperous because of the very able administration of President Harrison, who, by his tariff and reciprocity policy, I will not vote the Democratic ticket this year, but will vote for comrades Harrison, Reid, Chase and Worrell.

COLUMBUS, Ind., Oct. 19.

INSPECTING JAILS.

Secretary Johnson's Tour through Clay, Putnam, Hancock and Van Wert.

Mr. Johnson, secretary of the State Board of Charities, is home after an inspection trip through a number of counties. He reports the Clay county authorities have provided a separate cage for women apart from the men's quarters—an improvement long needed. The jail in Putnam county, he says, is still a very bad one and a disgrace to the county as well as to the civilization of the country. Speaking of the Terre Haute cases of committed and accused men to the jail for weeks without authority, he said the victims certainly were not treated with the respect due for false imprisonment against the sheriff.

State Board Members.

The State Board of Charities assembled yesterday in regular meeting, but adjourned in respect to the memory of the President's wife. A resolution was adopted and spread of record, extending to President Harrison the deepest sympathy of the members. The board will meet again Nov. 3.

SET UPON BY SHARKS.

County Clerks Had a Rocky Road to Travel in Getting Their Ballots.

The work of tying up and sealing the ballots for each precinct in the State was completed at half-past 4 o'clock yesterday. A great many of the county clerks called for their quota of ballots, and received for them to Secretary Stein. One or two of the first brought in several young men whom they found idle on the street to help them tie the sealed packages into large bundles, and paid the helpers well. This put a notion into the latter's heads that the day was a good one to make money fast. With a true fakir's eye to business, they invested in a quantity of twine and heavy paper and for a while did a land-office business. Jesse S. Regan, of Boone county, was charged $6 for packing his eleven packages, and paid it under protest. He had not taken for thirty young men. An expressman called in, caught in the inkling of the opportunity, and charged him $2 for carrying the three bundles to the Union Station. The clerk of Decatur county had twenty-six precinct packages to carry home. He fell into the clutches of the willing helper. Their charge was $14. "I won't pay," said he. "Well, what'll yer give us?" was demanded.

He compromised at $5.

The clerk of Steuben county was charged $5 for tying up three packages. He refused to be led. The sharks dropped to $3. He defied them to collect it. They finally accepted $1.

J. W. Parrigo, of Booneville, was one of the victims. The sharks asked him if he wanted the packages tied up for convenience in carrying home. He gave them the job, and was charged $3. The customary surprise and "kick" found vent thus: "If I will pay it?" He finally offered $2, which was accepted with the readiness of a bird for a worm. The clerks of Floyd, Clark, Knox and Gibson counties met the sharks with a counter combination. They made a bargain with them for wrapping up the packages in all four of these counties, and if the ballots were not mixed up in the packing they are something ahead.

Mr. Stein was notified of what was going on and ordered the sharks from the State building. He said:

"In two cases I heard of the excessive charges and made the fellows pay back the money. The matter of packing these bundles of ballots has nothing to do with the county clerks have accepted to me for them, and I did not know that there was any further cause of complaint. It was not my fault that these officers were charged excessively. They had the right to do as they please with the packages after I had the receipts for them."
